三、阅读 (本题共两篇文章, 10 个小题, 每小题 2 分, 共 20 分) 阅读短文, 从 A、B、C、D 四个选项中选出最佳选项。

Passage One

Rome has the Forum. London has Speaker's Corner. Now always-on-the-go New Yorkers have Liz and Bill.

Liz and Bill, two college graduates in their early 20s, have spent a whole year trying to have thousands of people talk to them in subway stations and on busy street corners. Just talk.

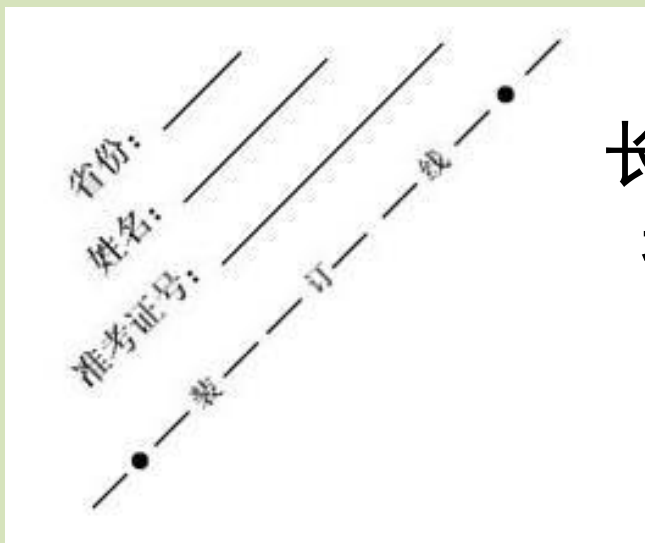

Using a 2-foot-tall sign that says "Talk to me", they attract conversationalists (健谈的人), who one evening included a mental patient and men in business suits.

They don't collect money. They don't push religion (宗教). So what's the point? "To find out what happens," said Liz. "We simply enjoy life with open communication (交流)."

Shortly after the Sep.11, 2001 attacks, they decided to walk from New York City to Washington, a 270-mile trip. They found they loved talking to people along the way and wanted to continue talking with strangers after their return.

"It started as a crazy idea," Liz said. "We were so curious about all the strangers walking by with their life stories. People will talk to us about anything: their jobs, their clothes, their childhood experiences, etc."

Lucy wanted to talk about an exam she was about to take. She stopped by (顺路造访) for the second time in two days, to let the two listeners know how it went.

(共 9 页) 第 5 页

Mary had lost her husband to a serious disease. "That was very heavy on my mind," Mary said. "To be able to talk about it to total strangers was very good," she explained.

To celebrate a year of talking, the two held a get-together in a city park for all the people they had met over the past year. A few hundred people showed up.

They may plan more parties or try to attract more people to join in their informal talks. Some publishers have expressed interest in a book, something they say they'll consider.

26. What did Liz and Bill start doing after September 2001?

- A. Chatting with people.
- B. Setting up street signs.
- C. Telling stories to strangers.
- D. Organizing a speaker's corner.

27. What they have been doing can be described as _____.

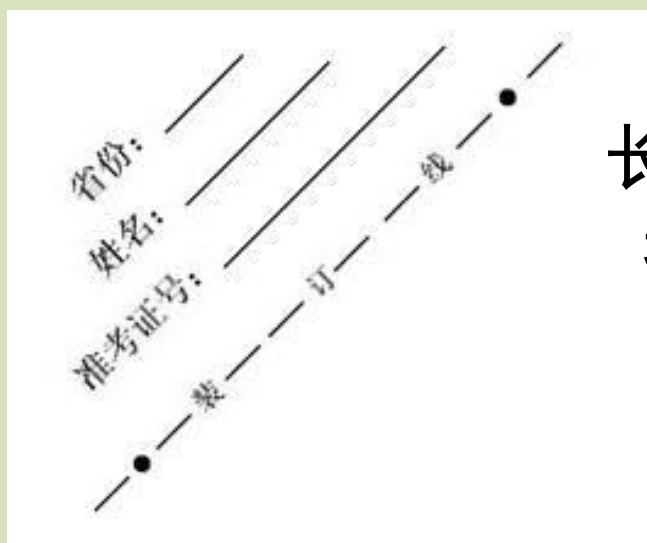

- A. pointless
- B. normal
- C. crazy
- D. successful

28. Why are Lucy and Mary mentioned in the text?

- A. They knew Liz and Bill very well.
- B. They happened to meet the writer of the text.
- C. They organized the get-together in the city park.
- D. They are examples of those who talked to Liz and Bill.

29. What will Liz and Bill do in the future?

- A. Go in for publishing.
- B. Do more TV programs.

- C. They will think about it carefully.
- D. They find it hard to do that.

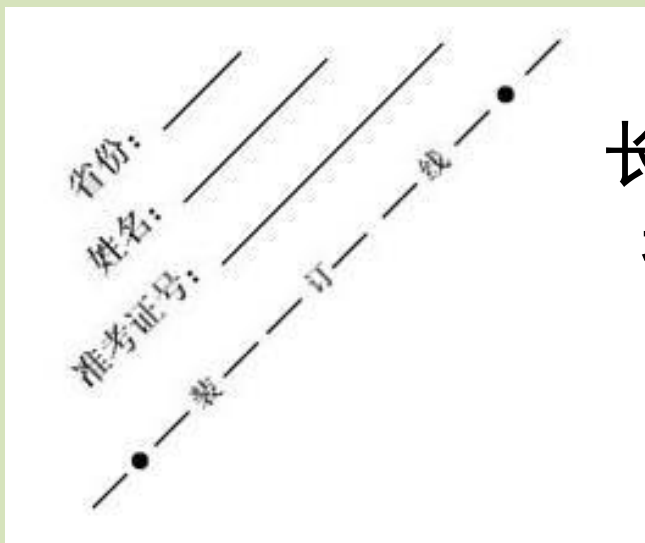

Passage Two

Do you blank out (忘掉) or feel so nervous in exams that you have trouble writing answers to questions that you knew just last night? If so, you likely have a case of test anxiety.

But, don't be afraid. By recognizing the problem, you are taking the first step towards overcoming it.

Believe it or not, a touch of nervousness can sharpen (使锋利; 使尖锐) your mind, allowing you to perform more quickly. This is because under stress, the body releases (释放) the hormone (荷尔蒙) adrenaline (肾上腺素), which prepares it for something important that will happen. However, too much anxiety can result in sleeplessness, loss of appetite (胃口) before tests and poor performance. Some people might feel hot and tired. With great anger they often shout or complain for no reason.

If you worry a lot or are a perfectionist (完美主义者), you are more likely to have trouble with test anxiety. Those who have prepared poorly for a test or have had negative experiences taking tests may also experience test anxiety.

长春大学 2019 年特殊教育学院 招生考试英语试题 (视障考生)

(共 9 页) 第 7 页

When you feel a storm of anxiety coming on, stop what you are doing and make your mind a blank. If possible, actually tell yourself to “STOP!” This will get your mind off the stress.

Then think of being at a place of comfort and let your body relax. As you continue the test, find questions you know the answers to and answer them first. This will help restore your confidence.

Besides, talk to yourself using positive language. Make it a habit to replace each negative thought with a logical reason — for example — “I’ve studied hard and I know the material, so I’m ready to do the best I can.”

Another thing you can do is to learn to accept mistakes. In fact, they can be valuable learning opportunities.

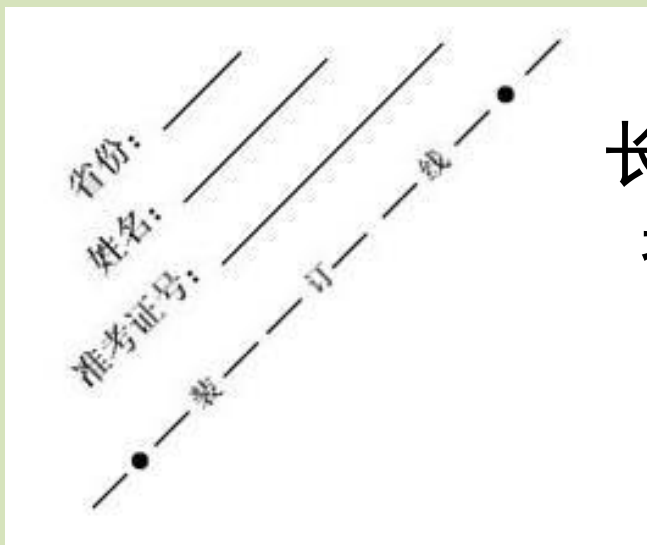

Last but not least, start test preparation early — three to five days ahead of the quiz or test. After all, good study habits and skills — for example, time management and note-taking — will give you the feeling that you are in control.

31. The best title of the passage is probably _____.

- A. How to Beat Test Anxiety
- B. What Is Test Anxiety
- C. The Effects of Test Anxiety
- D. Experiencing Test Anxiety Will Help You

32. Those _____ more easily suffer from test anxiety.

- A. who want everything to be perfect
- B. who are not well prepared for a test

- D. who do poorly in their study
33. The author mentions _____ pieces of suggestions about how to get over test anxiety.
- A. 3 B. 4 C. 5 D. 6
34. What can we infer from the passage?
- A. Mistakes can't be valuable and helpful.
- B. Those who have prepared well for a test experience test anxiety easily.
- C. A touch of anxiety can have a positive effect.
- D. Poor test preparations will give you the feeling that you are in control.
35. The underlined word "hot" in Paragraph 3 means _____.
